

Peter Greene, with a background in chemistry and x-ray crystallography, had a career in research, development and manufacturing with a major multinational company both in the UK and abroad. After retirement, he was a non-executive director in the local NHS. He is a keen photographer and a Trustee of the Battle Museum of Local History. His (historical) interests include: the history, development and communication of science, particularly the Arabic contribution in the early Middle Ages; medieval history; many aspects of world history (European, Chinese, colonial and trade developments etc).