

Charlotte Moore is a local author, lecturer and freelance journalist who regularly contributes to newspapers and magazines including the Guardian, the Daily Telegraph and the Spectator. She has published four novels, three historical biographies for children, 'George and Sam', a highly acclaimed account of her life with her autistic sons and 'Hancox: A House and A Family' a social/family history based on her family home in Whatlington, which includes the story of Ben Leigh Smith.