The Lay Subsidy Rolls for the Rape of Hastings 1524–5

These are the best detailed records since those of the early 14th century, but the Cinque Ports were still free of these taxes, except for foreigners ... so a lot of information is still missing for these boroughs.

THE HUNDRED OF NETHERFELD

The boroughs of this hundred in the 14th century were Brightling and Penhurst (assessed together in the subsidy of 1296), and Netherfield and Mountfield (also joined in 1296). Penhurst was not mentioned in 1332. From the 1525 assessment it is possible to indentify the whole of Mountfield, and part of Brightling. The division here between Brightling and the following is based on the fragment of the 1525 list, and is, therefore, purely conjectural.

HUNDR' DE GOSTROW

The arrangement of the names in the two returns suggests a division into two sections, the first perhaps Brede, to which the Motte family belonged (S.A.C., LXVI, 143), the second Udimore.
